

Center for Wealth Management

Susan A. Myers, CPA, CFP®, CLTC
Robert J. Moore
Justin M. Williamson
755 W. Big Beaver Rd, Ste 600
Troy, MI 48084
248-680-0490
smyers1@metlife.com
www.center4wealthmgmt.com

Myths and Facts about Social Security

Myth: Social Security will provide most of the income you need in retirement.

Fact: It's likely that Social Security will provide a smaller portion of retirement income than you expect.

There's no doubt about it--Social Security is an important source of retirement income for most Americans. According to the Social Security Administration, more than nine out of ten individuals age 65 and older receive Social Security benefits.

But it may be unwise to rely too heavily on Social Security, because to keep the system solvent, some changes will have to be made to it. The younger and wealthier you are, the more likely these changes will affect you. But whether retirement is years away or just around the corner, keep in mind that Social Security was never meant to be the sole source of income for retirees. As President Dwight D. Eisenhower said, "The system is not intended as a substitute for private savings, pension plans, and insurance protection. It is, rather, intended as the foundation upon which these other forms of protection can be soundly built."

No matter what the future holds for Social Security, focus on saving as much for retirement as possible. You can do so by contributing to tax-deferred vehicles such as IRAs, 401(k)s, and other employer-sponsored plans, and by investing in stocks, bonds, and mutual funds. When combined with your future Social Security benefits, your retirement savings and pension benefits can help ensure that you'll have enough income to see you through retirement.

Myth: Social Security is only a retirement program.

Fact: Social Security also offers disability and survivor's benefits.

With all the focus on retirement benefits, it's easy to overlook the fact that Social Security also offers protection against long-term disability. And when you receive retirement or disability benefits, your family members may be eligible to receive benefits, too.

Another valuable source of support for your family is Social Security survivor's insurance. If you were to die, certain members of your family, including your spouse, children, and dependent parents, may be eligible for monthly survivor's benefits that can help replace lost income.

For specific information about the benefits you and your family members may receive, be sure to read your Social Security Statement, which you will receive every year from the Social Security Administration (SSA). You can also visit the SSA's website at www.socialsecurity.gov, or call 800-772-1213 if you have questions.

Major Sources of Retirement Income

Note: Data may not total 100% due to rounding.

Source: Fast Facts & Figures About Social Security, 2010, Social Security Administration

Here's a tip

Watch the mail for your Social Security Statement, which contains a personal record of the earnings on which you've paid Social Security taxes, and a summary of the estimated benefits you and your family may one day receive. You should receive your statement about three months before your birthday. When you receive it, check your earnings history, and report any errors to the SSA as soon as possible.

Myth: If you earn money after you retire, you'll lose your Social Security benefit.

Fact: Money you earn after you retire will only affect your Social Security benefit if you're under full retirement age.

Once you reach full retirement age, you can earn as much as you want without affecting your Social Security retirement benefit. But if you're under full retirement age, any income that you earn may affect the amount of benefit you receive:

- If you're under full retirement age, $1 in benefits will be deducted for every $2 you earn above a certain annual limit. For 2011, that limit is $14,160.
- In the year you reach full retirement age, $1 in benefits will be deducted for every $3 you earn above a certain annual limit until the month you reach full retirement age. If you reach full retirement age in 2011, that limit is $37,680.

Myth: Social Security benefits are not taxable.

Fact: You may have to pay taxes on your Social Security benefits if you have other income.

If the only income you had during the year was Social Security income, then your benefit generally isn't taxable. But if you earned income during the year (either from a job or from self-employment) or had substantial investment income, then you might have to pay federal income tax on a portion of your benefit. Up to 85% of your benefit may be taxable, depending on your tax filing status (e.g., single, married filing jointly) and the total amount of income you have.

Once you begin receiving Social Security benefits, you'll receive a Social Security Benefit Statement that shows the amount you received during the previous year. You can use this when you file your federal income taxes to find out if your benefits are subject to tax. For more information on this subject, see IRS Publication 915, Social Security and Equivalent Railroad Retirement Benefits.

What Is Your Full Retirement Age?

If you were born in:	Your full retirement age is:
1943-1954	66
1955	66 and 2 months
1956	66 and 4 months
1957	66 and 6 months
1958	66 and 8 months
1959	66 and 10 months
1960 and later	67

Note: If you were born on January 1 of any year, refer to the previous year to determine your full retirement age.

Pursuant to IRS Circular 230, We are providing you with the following notification: The information contained in this document is not intended to (and cannot) be used by anyone to avoid IRS penalties. This document supports the promotion and marketing of MetLife products and services. You should seek advice based on your particular circumstances from an independent tax advisor. MetLife, its agents, and representatives may not give legal or tax advice. Any discussion of taxes herein or related to this document is for general information purposes only and does not purport to be complete or cover every situation. Tax law is subject to interpretation and legislative change. Tax results and the appropriateness of any product for any specific taxpayer may vary depending on the facts and circumstances. You should consult with and rely on your own independent legal and tax advisers regarding your particular set of facts and circumstances. This document is provided to you for informational purposes only, and is not intended to represent any specific product or service offered. Unless noted, insurance policies and annuity contracts contain exclusions, limitations, reductions of benefits, surrender charges and terms for keeping them in force. Not all strategies or concepts can be used with all MetLife products. You may need to check with your representative to determine whether any limitations (administrative or otherwise) may apply. This material reflects the law established under The Tax Relief, Unemployment Insurance Reauthorization and Job Creation Act of 2010 ("Act"). Among other changes, the Act temporarily establishes minimum exemption amounts of $5,000,000 per person for federal gift, estate and generation skipping transfer tax (together referred to as "transfer tax") purposes, establishes a maximum transfer tax rate of 35% and provides for portability of the estate tax exemption between spouses. These changes, however, are only in effect through December 31, 2012. Unless Congress enacts new legislation, on January 1, 2013 the transfer tax laws will revert to the laws (e.g. exemption amounts of $1,000,000 and generally 55% maximum tax rates) in effect in 2001. At this time it is not clear what steps, if any, Congress will take to revise the transfer tax laws for years beyond 2012. Changes in transfer tax exemption amounts and transfer tax rates may impact the appropriateness of any transfer tax planning strategy or product sale. Securities products, including mutual funds and variable annuities are sold by prospectus, which is available from your registered representative. For information about a securities product please obtain a prospectus and read it carefully before you invest to consider investment objectives, risks, charges, and expenses. This material is prepared by Forefield, Inc. MetLife and its affiliates are separate entities from Forefield, and do not guarantee the accuracy of the information presented. Any calculations contained in this document are for hypothetical purposes only and may be calculated off information you provide. Performance figures are for illustrative purposes only, do not represent actual past or projected future investment results and do not guarantee future results. Unless noted, costs are not included, and may reduce projected figures. Results should be used as educational and may not contain all variables specific to your situation. Please see your representative for questions specific to your own situation. Metropolitan Life Insurance Company (MLIC), New York, NY 10166. Securities products and investment advisory services are offered through registered representatives and investment advisor representatives, respectively, of MetLife Securities Inc. (MSI), Member FINRA/SIPC and a registered investment advisor, 1095 Avenue of the Americas, New York, NY 10036. MetLife Auto & Home is a brand of Metropolitan Property and Casualty Insurance Company (MPCIC) and its affiliates, Warwick, RI. Not available in all states. Some health insurance products offered by unaffiliated insurers through the Enterprise General Insurance Agency, Inc. (EGA), Somerset NJ 08873. MLIC, MSI, MPCIC and the EGA are MetLife companies. L0211160197[exp0112][All States][DC]